

This poster was adapted from an official US Department of Agriculture poster published in 1942 for the Hemp Production Board. That poster was part of the successful "Hemp for Victory" program in the all-out effort to win World War II. Throughout the war thousands of Hemp for Victory posters hung in Grange halls, post offices, and USDA Extension offices all across the Midwest. You can learn all about it and the history of hemp in America from The Energy Caper while cheering on the spunky characters as they search for love and meaning while trying to free the nation from the clutches of Big Oil.
