

The famous "I need smokes more than anything else" first world war recruitment poster, inspired by Admiral Pershing and his tobacco starved American Expeditionary Force, highlights another pivotal moment in tobacco's growing social acceptability.